The Land of Sunsets!

Tuesday Eve.

Ruth Dearest,

Tonight I got the letter in which you announced a letter a day. Whoo-e-e-e.

But you wait try to shame me will you?

Let me see what can I tell you, that's real interesting? not a thing. For an hour and a half now Cheese, and I have been sitting here discussing the problem of being some pumpkins in this world. It's been interesting too. It started in by Cheese asking me when I was going to marry. Nice of him to bring you into it wasn't it? He suggests that I should marry a year or two after graduation, cause a man doesn't start to live until he is married, and if he gets the right girl the longer their married the happier they'll be. I promised to start on the hunt for the girl immediate. Will you be mine? I catch the answer already - Thanks.

Let's cut this short tonight. In the next one I write I hope to have something interesting to tell you. You must have some job at 50 per, and a dig with the boss. I never liked a cannuck anyhow. Good night Sweetheart and here's a bear hug. x x x
