Saturday afternoon.

Dearest Susie,

Been moving today, but now have to hang around here for the last mail. Wanted to here from Ham - just what train bid come on etc. but haven't heard yet. Suppose I have to hang around here all day tomorrow too, till he shows up.

Where's your letter today? Is it coming? Sure hope so, because if it doesn't I'll have to wait till Tuesday, and that's too long.

By golly I don't know anything to tell you Sweetheart.

This has been such a slow purposeless day that I'm kind a disgusted with myself. Too much sleep last night maybe eh?

I'm wondering lots of things these days. Maybe if I put some of 'em down you'll see some that you haven't thought of before.

Did Bert register?

How are the P.O.'s kicking into the pledging!

and the Pi Phi's too

(expect to hear lots of that - won't be enough tho!)

How are all our friends? and all your lovers, g-r-r-r.

you'll think of some more too I know.

I'd like to tell you now just exactly how much I'd like to be on my way to your house now. I feel like I can't stand it much longer, this crying inside all the time, and being lonesome, and wishy. That's the reason I don't like holidays, they give me too much time for feeling sorry for myself. I'll be different now tho' out in Somerville, and tomorrow morning when Ham comes I'll feel different. I won't forget you then. I'll just get my mind off what might be if I could!

could hild off to Reno and my heart.

So long, Sweetie, see you tomorrow. Here's all kinds of luck to you for the big times that start each school year.
