Sweetheart of mine,

It was dead easy. called Mr. Daniels up about nine. "Oh this is Mr. Walker speaking? when are you coming down to see me?" answers: "as soon as I may." and with that he told me how to get there.

when I arrived and could see him, he asked when I left Keno, then turned me over to the man directly in charge, who was already arranging a desk for me. Result I have one day behind me.

The pay in this department was raised a short time ago, and I am to get $1.5 per week instead of the $1.2 I expected.

and besides I'm going to room at the y.m.c.a. with one of the young fellows from the office - a Brown graduate. we went to see "Princess Pat" together this evening just to celebrate. Every-thing is working out beautifully sweetheart, and I'm going to like Boston better than any place yet, except the place where you happen to be. Hope we can be here together some-time.

Rush a letter care of the y.m. please. I only hope that Aunt Carrie has a few to forward to me, when she gets my address.

And now good night, loving kid. This place isn't going to be half so lonely as Los Angeles was, because I have plenty to do, and because there isn't a long unknown period ahead for us. I'm loving you awful hard too, and it's a sure thing that the prettiest girl in all Boston town couldn't start to win me away. It's me for you, and you for me now and always.

Kisses and hugs galore to you - my sweetheart. Love, John.
