Wednesday Eve.

Deafest Dear,

Just been to Pops again with Louis Seavitt and his cousin. Louis dropped up to the office this A.M. about ten. We lunched together, and then this evening went to the concert. He insists emphatically that I spend the week end - Saturday aft. till Tues. night at the lake with him. Easy - only I'd almost promised Hawkins I'd go to Springfield with him. I'll have to be the lake.

Got a grand old letter from you today — and you found "when the lights ~~went~~ went out." Good I like it already. An art store in town has a wonderful collection of exposition photos, touched up in oil. They are truly works of art - and as such cost $10 per one. I went in to price them today. one of those would surely be fine for our house too.

you must be having a great time getting your hope chest filled up. I'm so glad too that mother is interested.
maybe she'll be our mother-in-law exception to prove the rule.

Danny doesn't send any men out until they've been examined physically, and tomorrow morning at 9.30 I'm in it. I can sleep a little later thereby, cause the Doc's office is close to here.

Poor Rufie in the Dentists' chair.

Did she tell Doc any more secrets
what she was afraid of afterwards?
But if Doc's a reason that's O.K.

Here's a good-night, my Sweetheart.
and a real hearty love to you - dotted with round soundy smashes -
