Wednesday Evening.

Sweetheart o' Mine:-

Sure I thought for certain that someone was holding out on my mail. Think of it - two days without a letter - you never did that before. (Echo! Oh! No!!!!!!)

But sneaky kid I got two today, and I'm happier'n four clams at high tide.
It was worth the wait (in gold).

Didn't think that T.H.S. was raising any Ella Wheeler Wilcoxes to ~~epitomize~~ chant epodes to your name. I shouldn't care to have it take chances in any sort of literary show - should you? It shows the right tread of thought, however, and I'll wager that there were a good many better written, but without the proper subject. Bless you Surely it's you - not what people say about you, that counts with everybody.

We had another great old party last night. Eight of us went to see Marguerite Clark in "The Seven Sisters." It was a wonderful picture-truly - well acted - wonderfully staged - and had a pretty plot something along the comic opera order. Then the crowd went to Mrs. Chandler's for a feed. We sang and danced till eleven, then had hot waffles with honey and coffee. Um-m-m-m. Didn't get home till awful late - so late that Bob and Connie didn't get up till after 12 o'clock. I rose at 8. but oh! you bed now. So she has been going for the last weeks. Too much entirely.

Bob leaves in the morning - and I'm genuinely - and sincerely sorry. By golly he's a wonderful pal. He's my second best pal - but not even a close second.

There's going to be a total re-arrangement of the basketball schedule, and perhaps in our vacation. Do you prefer it a week ahead, or a week that follows the one proposed. I wait your reply, or soon as the girls trip is arranged however let us let you know. Perhaps I can help you entertain the dear little ducklings (or geese - some of 'em) (hope you don't have an awful lot to do that week. You want if you can help it well you.

The game see you soon, and the game sent up to you, and the game my you, and the game has you, and the game love you for a whole week, just as had as if possibly, possibly can. And the game be in two weeks almost, and maybe one week -

with you -

Do hope my sweetheart -
