Wednesday night.

My Sweetheart what. Conquers,

See who's here - who? - why

Dummy - and with both feet.

Today I read "a prayer for Boston," and then immediately "come right away!" whoops - e - e - e. But hold!

what does mother think of it.

all? I'm writing it all to her now, and besides I want you to find a few moments, before she answers the letter, to have a good talk with her. I know absolutely where you stand, but mother will see only the immediate danger, and shall be shy. See her and talk with her, and help her decide that the only thing for me to do is to rush to Boston, and get a going. I can make good - I know I can, and the biggest and best chance is right here with us.

Today I talked to Dilworth about it, and he is as happy as I am. He promises to get another teacher for the remainder of the term, and do all in his power to make it easy for me. If Mother feels right about it I intend to go immediately - not forgetting a few days in Reno of course. Friday the 14th is a good day to quit, and I should want to be in Boston by May 1st.

If I don't jump now the chance may never come again, and certainly Suker will never take the same interest again.
All things except Mother say "go!!!" you do I know. 'cause that will mean a bungalow in a year easily the way things are moving now, and will continue to move as time goes on.

Saj-Bert will be a tough one to fix, won't he? You work on him too, won't you. He may be unreasonable, and for cause, but gosh someday we can repay a great many of these debts.

Golly Suesky it looks like we can ~~make~~ make things come our way if we use plenty of persistence, and persuasion, and proper thinking. You and I are starting our teamwork already. Watch out for Ruth and Joan - they're a team that know where they are going, and intend to get there. God bless you Suesky maybe I see you awful soon and then really - Oye, year - (lots of em - you're free, Joan.)
