Hello Kiddie -

a short note in the midst of lots of work - and do you know I'd write these real often if only the facilities were handy. One just dropped into the Capt's room and find his stationery on the table. In my own room I'd have to dig for ten minutes to find a piece of paper - and by that time some darned fool orderly would come around with instructions of some sort!

I'm still waiting about the Captain's going and will for a long time. He hasn't
read "tant-de-suite" when he comes to see you he'll have a great deal to tell you; for we have been good friends, and he likes you.
He is just now writing his wife and kiddies about coming home. How wonderfully happy they will be - and how I envy the pride that they must have for their daddy!

Nothing much to talk about these days cause it's turned a bit cooler, and we haven't been to the swimming hole for several days - and while it's good fighting weather (and that's all summer) there is always something that the censorship must forbid. Even a discussion of the part of the country where we are won't go. you'll see how that goes don't you?

But when the long winter evenings come I can just fill you up with beautiful French scenes - romantic history of the past - and bloody battles of the present. (?) (Sounds awful doesn't it? - Isn't tall.)

So long sweetheart - just as soon as the next opportunity comes I'll scribble some more - I'm very well, and really happy for lots of things - Big kiss - Love, Tom
