My Sweetheart. Tuesday.

wasn't it terrible last night - ugh! that berth seemed five yards wider wasn't a bit comfortable or cozy - gee I missed you a lot. wasn't no fun traveling alone any more.
I don't want to do it again - you kept a little bit didn't you? - I saw you and I felt sorry too I might be sorry for you. Bless your sweet heart for being so constant and so much in love - how can I help feeling lonesome without you.

I was cold last night awful cold and along toward morning I had to fall for an extra blanket. Next fine after that there's a fellow on this car - the observation car - that imitates a dog exactly and he has a youngster about thirteen believing that there is one in the car. The kid goes from ~~one~~ chair to chair looking for it and every once in a while the fellow snarls and grabs him by the seat of the paint, till the kid nearly jumped out of his skin. The earl his him an uproar continuously. I just called the kid down for tormenting the poor animal like he does, said it is my dog - a pet of my wife, and offered him a quarter to find it. He don't know what to do.

Being thru Oregon now - shit, mefard pretty soon and ashland about five o'clock - I'll eat a peach for you sneaky dear, and remember what a hell of fun we had coming over this road.

Poor Dad hated to see me go yesterday, didn't he - I saw it in his eyes. I'm happy that he wasn't glad, I meant and that he so obviously enjoyed the week I was there. wasn't it lots of fun tho? Um - I had a good time, and I'll never forget how good that chicken ~~to~~ tasted after the long walk we'd had.

Tomorrow will be a busy day in Frisco, and I can give you some definite information - I've got sweethearts
