Sept. 4, 1919.

My Sweet Sweet wife - Tired - awful tired - and lonely - terribly - terribly lonely - please come and sleep on my arm won't you? I can't understand it <sup>but</sup> some way or other this is lots worse than going to France. See if you're thinking of me as much as I am of you - your shoulder will be as square as a mission mahogany table when I see you - only five days more - only - I wish it were tomorrow.

I've had a wild, almost hysterical (if I am allowed the expression) day - but I've done a lot, and now when I leave I can feel that our affairs are in a comfortable position. I am giving the whole matter over to the lawyer who finally settled the estate here, and I know that our affairs will be safe, and that any opportunities that come will be seized upon. Three pieces of property are especially good. I visited them - saw the marvelous growth around them, and talked with the neighbors who were all enthusiastic over prospects.

Also there is considerable activity in real estate now with <sup>rapidly</sup> an improving market so that someday soon we may be able to cash in without so very many vain regrets. But I can't tell you more about that later.

Here's a reminder on the desk to get a $150 money order and I haven't done it yet.

I will certainly tomorrow because I don't want to carry it around any longer. It will be on New York so you can mail it to or take it the $150 you draw there. we can make money that way.

I prophesy a large night's sleep tonight - after three nights on trains and two "hctic" days I well may.
 But to think of crawling into that nice broad - cool bed all alone disturbs me terribly. I want you nearby mine - a lot - a whole lot more in any thing else - and it's five days more - Hurry five days.

Good night sweetheart - kisses and kisses to knock you for a coucou -
