Sunday night.

Breaky mine: -

Well this has been quite a day. Eva came yesterday about noon. I couldn't meet her because I passed her on the way to a meeting of the Guild of Gas Managers. Her Sabine came in on the 7.15 and when I got home about six. I found a house full. His wouldn't let me sleep on the couch so she did and Sabine slept with mother.

It was cold today but the Dayton's, the Schell's with two Keolsukians from Boston, Eva and I went skiing and we had an awful nice time.

I worked considerable at the office - paying all our bills, and getting some stuff for the Pentucket meeting next wed. eve. wish that were over and a success, 'cause besides being an end man I have some more stunts to do.

every morning when Betty wakes up the first thing she thinks of is to pull her handkerchief out of her pocket and blow her nose. and she does it so sweetly. Today after her sleep out doors Ann's cheeks were vermillion. She gets brighter every day, and she'll have more new stunts when you come back. you'd eat 'em both up if you could see them. wish you could!!

No word from you at the office today so we're figuring your first letter ~~is~~ came here to # 28. My how anxious we are to get that first letter to tell us just how you found things.

Mrs. Eho has started on me for the College Club play to be given Jan. 17. From her account I get a good part if I go in. but she left it up to ~~you~~ your arrangements. you know how I like to do that. and I think I can find time for it.

Eddie and Elizabeth came over this evening for a while after we were skiing. Betty and E. played together beautifully, and Ann watched on screaming her head off. She's sure the screamingest kid - more pep than a Russian Dancer.

Eva and Sabine have notes enclosed. Mother sends her best love - and tells you that everything is going along beautifully, and for you not to come home until you get things all straightened out.
Christmas won't be till you come, so don't think you're going to miss it all. Ann calls for Mom -
mom. mom, and Betty asks continually for her mama. Daddy wants you, too, a lot, and hopes you can come home soon to your lonesome family.
Misses all around and specially me. <sup>x x x x</sup>
