Tuesday Evening.

Sweet Mommie.

How does it feel to be a lonely widow? You will learn how desolate it is for this widower up here in the cold city all alone. I'm anxious to hear all your adventures getting home. Even if something happened (which I'm sure there had not) I couldn't have heard before this. But if there is no letter in the morning I'll be concerned.

I had a nice visit with Hawkins yesterday noon. We went up and down Reno with a fine tooth comb much to the delight of the two fellows who ate with us. Then today I was over at B & W for a check up and who should be there but Frank Tracy. This truly is our Reno week. Hawkins (his name is Rabbit but they call him by his middle name Zebbo. Tracy says you see some middle names are right appropriate) well anyway Zemo was quite distressed he hadn't seen you, but he had a chance to do some business so had to go to it.

Robie Robinson called yesterday (or Tom called for him) and he came to see me. Then last evening I had him for dinner. He had a cold on the way so we didn't feel like. He did give me these two pictures which he asked I send to you with love from the family. Robie is a good old boy and we had a swell visit.

Then here's a letter from Bets which she was certain we'd both see. Well so we will but not coincidentally. It looks as though Annie is in the Hotel business now. I hadn't heard Fannie was to be up in that section.

Still having fun at the office with plenty to do. and it's getting more interesting all the time. Oh Friday I'm going to Atlantic City to see the power co. man with one of the fellows from the office. Then instead of coming back here I'll go South from Philadelphia. Can't tell anything about trains now, so if I can't get word to you I'll call from the station. Also I'll try and remember to bring the letters. They are still coming in. Surprising, eh what?

It's still nice and nippy with snow promised tonight or in the morning. After I finish this I'll write a note to Durham and then go for a walk before I do some reading and go to bed.

Don't try to do all the packing at one time now - take it easy while you're by yourself. Take time off to do a little visiting around it will do you good.

Nite and lots of love -
